About Us:
Cowbell Kitchen is a farm & local producer-driven food business. We have built strong relationships with like-minded farmers, producers and small businesses. The cast of characters is endless, but the story is the same: we are all here to live our passion and bring to everyone the beauty of locally grown, raised and produced food.

At our bakery and the various farmer's markets across the DC Metropolitan area, the seasonally evolving menu changes by sourcing the freshest ingredients. Inspiration comes from a balance of classic rustic comfort foods along with the current trends. Everything we make is homemade and carefully crafted with love.

When you come to visit us in historic Leesburg you'll be greeted by smiling faces. We love to tell our story about where our food is sourced. As we talk you can watch us do our craft- the kitchen is open. We offer friendly counter service downstairs and a seating area up stairs. Take a seat and enjoy our cozy loft, we'll bring the food up to you!

Founded in 2013 by vision in a dream, Cowbell continues to be a labor of love. Women owned and operated we are a small, close knit, and driven team.
